

LIFEBOAT ACTIVITY

Learning Intention: To recognise that everyone has an inherent human dignity that should be protected and respected.

Instructions: Organise students into groups of 6. Read the below scenario to the students and then distribute the one profile card to each of the group members.

Within their groups, students are to take turns to justify their assigned person's position on the lifeboat.

There are six people on a small cruise ship that was headed to Fiji. The boat hit some submerged rocks underwater and begins to sink. Many people fell out of the boat and sadly drowned. As the ship continues to sink, they spot an island and believe that they are close enough to reach it in a lifeboat. However, there are only 6 of them left alive, but only room for 3 in the lifeboat. Those that go in the lifeboat will probably make it to the island where they will try to survive until they are rescued. Those that are left on the sinking cruise ship will likely go down with the ship and die.

Which of the 3 remaining passengers deserve a spot on the lifeboat?

Conclude the lesson with a debrief using the following guiding questions:

1. Which members did your group choose to save?
2. What criteria was used to determine their spot on the boat? Were certain physical or mental attributes more valued than others?
3. Which passengers were not selected to board the lifeboat and why?
4. What were some of the main disagreements within the group?
5. How did you resolve these disagreements and reach a final decision?
6. How did you use your knowledge of human dignity in this activity?
7. What did this activity teach you about each person's inherent human dignity?

After the debrief, remind students that the aim of this activity is to recognise that each person has an inherent, and equal, human dignity. Today's society often places value on a person based on their abilities, qualifications and status, and at times we are influenced by these ourselves. Each person deserves a place as we are all created equal, unique and are made in the image and likeness of God.
