

In Brazil,
many poor people
live in slums.

Some of the other people in the community don't like the people in the slums, because their houses are small and crowded, and the streets are sometimes dirty.

This makes the people in the slums feel unwanted and left out.
They know that if everyone in Brazil worked together, everyone could have a decent place to live.

But it's hard to change how the other people feel when they don't understand.

